J.Henry & Sons bourbon is crafted right here in Wisconsin. The Henry farm is located in Dane, WI, about 20 miles north of Madison. They've been growing the heritage red corn, rye and wheat used in their premium bourbon since 1946. From growing to harvesting, to the actual creation of their straight bourbon that's aged for a minimum of five years, the family plays every role in the process. The barrels rest in a warehouse that is not temperature controlled, allowing the varied weather to impart extra flavor from the barrels. Locally owned and proudly produced, we're lucky to call J.Henry a Wisconsin bourbon. visit jhenryandsons.com for more info!
